How to write a report on awareness program. Cancer awareness topics.

All rights reserved. Write an introduction to your report that details the purpose and significance of your report in more detail. This important resource can empower our young people and show them that while cancer is a horrible disease, we can all take steps to reduce our risk. Your Health Your Choice and Medtronic The Your Health Your Choice campaign was designed to bring awareness and education to you adolescents about how looking after your health can reduce their risk of 4 out of 10 types of cancer, and thanks to Medtronic's funding, we have managed to do just that. Do not introduce new information at this stage; instead review the main arguments in support of your recommendations. As part of our year two Medtronic Fund, Medtronic awarded €2k bursaries to 9 post-graduate nursing students (Trainers) from University College Dublin, Dublin City University and University College Cork. The programme makes cancer less frightening by enlightening, by engaging students with age-appropriate, interactive and informative material. Avoid words like maybe, perhaps and possibly. Provide specific details about the new procedures or solutions and the effects they will have. Include the disadvantages and problems the new procedures might create, as well as the benefits. Be precise, organize your material logically, and be fair; this will add force to your arguments. Our nurses delivered the YHYC programme to community groups around the country, looking at locations in Ireland particularly in hard to reach groups e.g. traveller groups in the East and South and also looking at the number of partnerships with Social Personal Health Educators (SPHE) teachers. Use the main body of your report to explain how you suggest implementing your recommendations. Provide balance to your report by discussing alternative solutions. Include relevant background information that will help the reader understand the motives and behind your recommendations. Be clear about what steps you think should taken in your recommendations. Keep your writing positive. Place the recommendation you feel is more promising last. The nine-module programme is available free of charge for teachers by contacting the Marie Keating Foundation directly or by completing the form below. Make it clear who should read the report, who wrote it, and what the content subject is. It forms part of Social Personal and Health Education (SPHE) curriculum. Finish your justification report with a brief summary of your conclusions and recommendations. Explain who will be involved, what they will do, what it will cost, and how long it will take to carry out. To create an effective report, you must produce convincing arguments and supporting evidence to back the changes you are proposing. Write a brief closing paragraph for your memo. The Marie Keating Schools Cancer Awareness Programme helps to achieve both of these goals. Liz Yeates, CEO, Marie Keating Foundation, said, "Whilst the prevalence of cancer is on the increase, once detected early, the outcomes are also much more positive thanks to new treatments and therapies. Justification reports recommend changes in business policies or procedures. Up to half of cancers are preventable so the curriculum-linked lesson plans will help students reduce their future risk of developing cancer by advising them on diet and fitness as well as improving their awareness of key symptoms. For reprint rights: Times Syndication Service School Cancer Awareness Programme The Marie Keating Foundation Schools Cancer Awareness Programme aims to help secondary school students and adult learners learn how to reduce their risk of cancer and how to spot the signs and symptoms early. They provide evidence justifying a course of action that solves a problem or improves performance, for example. State the research or the methods you followed to at your conclusions. Write an opening paragraph that describes the problem or purpose of your report. Watch our Director of Nursing Services, Helen Forristal speak about how the Your Health Your Choice programme, in tandem with the Schools Cancer Awareness Programme has benefited the adolescence of Ireland. Copyright © 2022 Bennett, Coleman & Co. Ltd. Explain in a few sentences what your recommendations are, and explain the benefits they will bring. Avoid generalities; be specific. If you are a secondary school teacher who is interested in using the Schools Cancer Awareness Programme, please complete the form below or call Angela on 01 628 3726. The Marie Keating Foundation's new schools programme means that we can give young people the information they need to understand cancer and the opportunity to discuss it openly. In its first year, we developed a YHYC microsite, videos, infographic posters, leaflets and workshop materials. Subjects covered in the programme include: Cancer prevention and healthy lifestyle choices Breast cancer Cervical cancer and the HPV vaccine Lung cancer Skin cancer Testicular cancer Taking time to look after your body and mind Speaking at the re-launch of the programme, Minister Frances Fitzgerald, TD, said "Every minute in Ireland, an average of 3 new cases of cancer are diagnosed and this number is expected to rise by a third by 2020. We have a clear challenge to help reduce the number of people being diagnosed with cancer by highlighting prevention and also by providing information and support to those already affected by the disease. During year two, we integrated the content of YHYC and modified our Schools Cancer Awareness Programme (CAP) which educates secondary school students on the signs and symptoms of common cancers and on the importance of early detection and lifestyle choices in order to prevent cancer. Use a basic memo heading (To/From/Date/Subject) and fill in. Introduce each recommendation with an active verb to add strength to your suggestions. Tips Highlight the advantages of your recommendations, and explain how they outweigh any drawbacks. MKF upskilled these 9 graduates on YHYC and on the wider Schools Programme and they, in turn, delivered the program to 9 schools each (mainly in disadvantaged areas), thereby significantly increasing the reach and impact of the programme (to 7,780 students in 81 schools around Ireland). They often present solutions that result in financial savings or gains. gains.
