Joe 2 (working title) G.I. Joe: The Rise of Cobra Snake Eyes: G.I. Joe Origins (reboot) G.I. Joe: Retaliation is a live-action film and the sequel to G.I. Joe: The Rise of Cobra directed by Jon Chu and released on March 28, 2013. The film features the G.I. Joe Team coming into a conflict with Zartan, Storm Shadow and Firefly who are now all serving under the newly released Cobra Commander. (who is seen in disguise as the President of the United States) frames all G.I. Joe operatives as traitors and wipes most of the Joes out with a sneak blitz attack, leaving only Roadblock, Snake-Eyes, Flint and Lady Jaye. Zartan now has all the world leaders under Cobra control, with warheads headed towards innocent poplces. Badly beaten, outnumbered and outgunned, the Joes had to make a desperate plan to expose the truth, and take back the world from Cobra where they make their covert black ops war called the "Second American Revolution". Detailed summary In the Demilitarized Zone of the Korean Peninsula, Duke leads Roadblock, Mouse and Flint to find their North Korean mole. While they succeed, Flint takes the victory a bit too far, hanging the flag of the Joes in place of the North Korean flag. Later, Pakistan is in a civil war after the death of its President. The G.I. Joes are sent in to retrieve Pakistani nuclear warheads before any go missing. Unfortunately, the Joes are framed for stealing the nuclear warheads (by Zartan (Arnold Vosloo) who is impersonating the President of the United States (Jonathan Pryce) since the events of G.I. Joe: The Rise of Cobra. Most of the team is eliminated in a military strike with Duke (Channing Tatum) as one of the casualties. Roadblock (Dwayne Johnson), Flint (D.J. Cotrona) and Lady Jaye (Adrienne Palicki) are the only survivors and retreats to a temple in the Himalayas to recover. Upon learning that he is alive, the President of the United States (Arnold Vosloo) sends Snake Eyes (Ray Park) and his apprentice Jinx (Eloodie Young), Storm Shadow's cousin, to capture Storm Shadow so he can answer for the murder of his uncle, the Hard Master. Roadblock, Flint, and Lady Jaye return to the United States where they set up a base of operations in a rundown gym. After Zartan announces that Cobra will replace the Joes as America's main protective unit, Lady Jaye deduces that someone is impersonating the President and Roadblock leads them to General Joseph Colton (Bruce Willis) who provides them with weapons and teaches them infiltrate a fundraising event that the President will be attending, where Lady Jaye steals a sample of his DNA and confirms that he is Zartan. They escape after a brief confrontation with Firefly and Zandar (Matt Gerald), the head of the United States Secret Service Presidential Detail and a member of Cobra. Snake Eyes and Jinx locate and capture Storm Shadow after a battle with ninjas and take him back to Japan where Storm Shadow reveals that Zartan murdered the Hard Master and he joined Cobra to avenge his uncle, embittered that the clan didn't believe in his innocence. Storm Shadow then accompanies Snake Eyes and Jinx as they join the Joes' efforts to stop Cobra. Zartan invites the world leaders of the nuclear states to a summit at historic Fort Sumter, where he then launches all of the United States' nuclear warheads when the leaders don't immediately agree to total nuclear disarmament. All the leaders respond to the threat by launching their own arsenals, refusing to bow to Zartan's psychotic ultimatum. Zartan then self-destructs the US warheads and the other leaders are forced to do so as well. Zartan and Cobra Commander then reveal that they have created Project Zeus: Seven orbital kinetic bombardment weapons of mass destruction, all at his command. He destroys central London to prove his superiority and threatens to destroy other capitals if the countries don't submit to Cobra. However, Storm Shadow betrays Cobra commander and kills Zartan, revealing Cobra's deception to the world leaders, who are safely evacuated by Jinx while Storm Shadow and Snake Eyes fight off the Cobra infantry and ninjas. While Snake Eyes, Jinx and Flint fight Cobra's soldiers, Cobra Commander activates the Project Zeus weapons. Roadblock battles Storm Shadow and Storm Shadow disappears after avenging his uncle. The real President is put back into power and addresses the nation at a ceremony where Roadblock, Jaye, Flint, Jinx, and Snake Eyes are commemorated as heroes and G.I. Joe is reinstated as America's main protective unit. Colton thanks each of them, but when he gets to Snake Eyes, he presents him with the gun of General George S. Patton, for when he finally finds Cobra Commander and avenges Duke and the other Joes. Roadblock proudly raises the gun in the air and lets out one shot in honor of his fallen comrades. Appearances Featured characters (Numbers indicate order of appearance.) Memorable quotes Roadblock: Let's move, the world ain't saving itself. Other notes Continuity errors Everyone in Cobra seems to recognize Cobra Commander, even though he appointed himself Cobra Commander in a submarine with only Destro as a witness. Who led and ran the Cobra organization in the interim? G.I. Joe references Jinx is seen training with Snake-Eyes. Joes dressed in a red outfit, as in her original appearance in G.I. Joe: The Movie. Later on the mountain she is seen in her black and yellow ninja suit from G.I. Joe: Sigma 6. During the run of the 1980s animated series Flint and Lady Jaye had a bit of a romantic relationship with each other. In the comic book series, they are an actual couple. This relationship is foreshadowed in the scene after jay infiltrates the presidents party. The film is influenced by G.I. Joe: Renegades, where Cobra turns the authorities against the Joes, and they end up on the run. The revelation that Zartan is the true killer of the Hard Master comes from the Marvel comic "G.I. Joe: A Real American Hero #45" (March 1986). During the President's press conference, one of the news vans has the logo for Executive Enterprises, the COBRA front company run by the Crimson Guard commanders Tomax and Xamot. Real world references The vehicle driven by Roadblock in the final action sequence is a relatively new U.S. Military vehicle called the Ripsaw. At the time of film's release it is deployed in a display capable of up to U.S. Army. It can reach top speeds of above 80 mph, and an amphibious version is in the works. Development Rob Moore, the studio vice chairman, has stated that a sequel will be developed. The film's lead actors are contractually obligated to return.[1] In January 2010, Rhett Reese and Paul Wernick, the writers of Zombieland, were hired to write the script for the sequel.[2][3] Stephen Sommers was originally going to return as director of the sequel, but as of January 2011, Sommers will not be returning to direct,[4][5] Production on the film began in June and the film will likely be released in 2012, also seeing the return of Stormy Daniels as a supporting character.

The first official release date was August 10, 2012 or now changed to June 29, 2012.[8][9][10]The sequel's name was revealed as G.I. Joe: Retaliation,[11][12] before being speculated the title G.I. Joe: Cobra Strikes.[13] Joseph Gordon-Levitt confirmed in an interview that he will not be returning as "The Commander" in the sequel, Elodie Yung is in talks to join the cast in the film as Jinx. On June 27, 2011 actor D.J. Cotrona and rapper Rza were cast as Flint and Blind Master. On July 1, 2011, Adriane Palicki was confirmed for the lead female role of Lady Jaye. This was also announced on July 8 that Irish actor Ray Stevenson would portray the villain Firefly in the film.[14] On June 26, 2011, Joe Mazzello was confirmed for the role of Mouse.[15] In August 2011, Walton Goggins was added as Warden Nigel James,[16] and it was confirmed that Bruce Willis was cast to star in the film as the original G.I. Joe:[17][18] Ray Park also revealed that Snake Eyes' pet wolf, Timber, would be appearing in the sequel.[19] In September, a casting call sheet leaked to the Internet revealed that Cobra Commander would appear in the sequel, though it was unknown who will play the character.[20] Director Jon Chu stated in an interview, that this Cobra Commander is not the same character that Levitt played.[21]In February 2012, Chu confirmed that Cobra Commander will not be the same as in the first film, meaning that he will have a different backstory. Chu also said that fans will get a glimpse of Destro in the film, but Christopher Eccleston will not reprise his role from the sequel.[22]On May 1, 2012, it was confirmed by Jon Chu that Retaliation's Cobra Commander is Rex Lewis, the same character that Joseph Gordon Levitt played in The Rise of Grinch. In addition, it was confirmed that the movie will feature an Italian American character named Lorenzo di Bonaventura, revealed that Channing Tatum might come back and The Baroness will also be back.[23] The film was released on March 28, 2013.[28] The movie was previously slated for release in mid-2012.[29][30] but the date was changed, officially to add 3D and boost interest in international markets.[31] The delay "gobsmacked" the film industry, according to Deadline Hollywood, because Paramount had begun a substantial advertising campaign after the Super Bowl commercial, because "warehouses full of" toys were waiting for the film's launch, and it was one of only two Paramount-produced films scheduled for Summer 2012 release. Deadline stated that the real reason for the delay was to reshoot scenes to strengthen Tatum's character's relationship with Johnson's, reportedly the most popular aspect in test screenings, and—more importantly—change the plot to avoid Tatum's character's death early in the film, as Tatum has become a star with the successful The Vow and 21 Jump Street. The studio also wanted to avoid competing with Tatum's Magic Mike, also opening on June 29 2012, in which he plays a stripper [32] Cast list says Paramount had announced that there would be a third G.I. Joe film in 3D.[33][34]The film was slated to be released on March 27, 2020.[35][36] In 2018, the film's sequel was announced as G.I. Joe: Ever Vigilant.[37] However, G.I. Joe: Ever Vigilant was later either scrapped or postponed. In its place, a different film was announced, titled Snake Eyes: G.I. Joe Origins. The film was originally announced for the same release date of March 27, 2020, then shuffled around various dates due to the COVID-19 pandemic, before finally being scheduled for July 23, 2021. The film is a complete reborn of the G.I. Joe film franchise, featuring a new cast of characters and storylines. The film is currently in development at Warner Bros. Pictures, with the review aggregator site Rotten Tomatoes with 180 reviews, the site's Critics' Consensus feature stating that "Though arguably superior to its predecessor, 'G.I. Joe: Retaliation' is overwhelmed by its nonstop action and too nonsensical and rapid to leave a lasting impression." Leonard Maltin stated that "There's a decent attempt to humanize the characters and make them more than mere fighting machines...but there are also potholes in the logic of the screenplay," while Peter Bradshaw stated that "It would be nice to report that this movie, based on the Hasbro toy soldier line, was amiably daff and engagingly silly. But actually it's dull and aggressive, steroidally humourless." Poster gallery External links References 1. G.I. Joe opens to $100 million worldwide, but will it hold?, accessed August 11, 2009 1.
